Nutritional Hyperbaric Therapy & 100% Oxygen Hyperbaric Therapy

100% Hyperbaric Therapy

One hundred percent hyperbaric therapy has approximately 20-25 medically approved uses when 100% oxygen is utilized. One hundred percent hyperbaric oxygen therapy utilized in allopathic medicine is restricted in terms of indications and safety as 100% oxygen runs the risk of oxygen toxicity, tissue damage and explosions. Dr. Wald does not provide 100% hyperbaric therapy, but when his patients are in need of this therapy he refers them to an appropriate medical center

Something special offered by Dr. Wald...

What is Nutritional Hyperbaric?

Just the use of pressure in the hyperbaric chamber can have health benefits. Here is how:

Nutritional Hyperbaric Therapy (NHT) is the method of choice chosen by Dr. Wald and involves the use of ambient air that on average contains between 19-21% oxygen. This ambient air is filtered (cleaned) prior to entering the mild-hyperbaric chamber at a pressure of around 1.5 pounds per square inch of pressure. MHT does not run the risk of oxygen toxicity because this only happens with higher than normal (i.e., 100%) of oxygen.

A special combination

Dr. Wald combines NHT with a topical nutritional lotion that the individual rubs on their skin prior to entering the hyperbaric chamber. The pressure of the hyperbaric chamber has the potential of pushing the nutrition through the skin, a type of absorption known as trans-dermal absorption, such that the blood receives the nutrition directly bypassing the digestive tract. Read more about Dr. Wald's NHT breakthrough below. There are well documented effects of trans-dermal (through the skin) nutrition increasing blood levels of certain nutrients.
